

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

At the very outset of my research work, I like to express that I am profoundly indebted to my respected teacher and research supervisor Dr. Tiluttoma Baruah, Associate Professor, Cotton University, Guwahati-01, under whose able constant supervision and encouragement, it has been possible for me to complete the work. Without whose inspiration and unfailing guidance, valuable suggestions and constructive advice, it would not be possible for me to bring out the thesis into this final form. I owe deep sense of gratitude to her.

I would also like to offer my heartiest thanks to Dr. Dipak Kumar Adak, Research Associate, Anthropological survey of India, Kolkata for his valuable suggestion and encouragement.

My heartfelt of gratitude is towards the villagers of Tawang, for responding to the questionnaire, interview schedule and their co-operation while collecting data.

Special thanks to Dr. Upala Barua, Dr. Jonali Devi, Dr. Suparna Barua, Dr. Chandana Sarma, Dr. Dhaniram Baro, Mrs. Hridaya Nanda Das and Dr. Eliza Medhi of the department of Anthropology, Cotton University, Guwahati-01, Assam for their encouragement, advice and support in my research work. I am very much grateful to all those respected teachers.

I would like to acknowledge my deepest gratitude to my parents, my husband, my father-in-law, my mother-in-law, my brother and my sister. They had supported me in every step.

I acknowledge the financial assistance I received in the form of fellowship from Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR), New Delhi during my research work.
