

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

As I am approaching towards the end of my M.Phil. work with this submission of the thesis, I want to express my deep sense of gratitude to all those sources of help, support, guidance, encouragement and inspiration of my life. Those are the reasons, wherefrom I get the courage to sustain my goal of learning.

First of all, I express my heartfelt gratitude to my supervisor Prof. Archana Sharma for enlightening me a lot with knowledge, ideas and suggestions during this one year of M.Phil. work. I want to thank her for giving me the required liberty to explore the field of research but also being critical at times that made me conscious enough to realise my mistakes and not to commit them again. I feel indebted to her for her unconditional care, guidance and encouragement. I also offer my sincere gratitude to all the teachers of the Department of Economics, Gauhati University, whose suggestions helped a lot in carrying out my research work.

I offer my thanks to Prof. Amit Choudhury (Director, IDOL) and Dr. Parag Dutta (Asst. Professor, Dispur College) for giving their valuable time to clarify some of my doubts regarding the statistical part of my M.Phil. work.

I offer my deepest gratefulness to Shivalal who accompanied me while I collected data from the respondents. I thank Mrinal, Papori and Disha for constantly believing in me and motivating me to face all odds with flair.

I thank numerous other friends of mine who have given me valuable opinions which helped me to look at the issues at hand from multiple perspectives.

I thank all the respondents who could make time to talk to me and help me collect the required data.

I thank my students who understood my busy schedule and gave me enough flexibility so that I can continue with my work without hassle.

I would thank my mother Mrs. Binita Das and my brother Bikash Das, who have unburdened me from the household chores so that I can devote my full attention to my research work. Lastly, I would thank my partner Pratik Srivastava for putting up with me and handling me during my days of frustration and delusion.

PRAKASH DAS

Date: